

Do you or your students need help understanding how to use Gen AI responsibly?

Then, register for the University of Johannesburg's Short learning programme in Responsible AI Use: Ethical Considerations for Large Language Models

With dynamic and specialist instructors from the University of Johannesburg's Department of Philosophy and the Centre for Data Ethics (part of the Institute for Intelligent Systems (IIS)), this short learning programme will help you navigate ethical considerations in artificial intelligence, with a special focus on the use of LLMs in research, education and industry.

Programme Overview:

In this comprehensive 7-week online course, you'll be introduced to:

- Foundations of Ethics: Understanding the differences between ethics, morals, and the law.
- Critical approaches to the ethical issues posed by AI: Engaging with the ethical challenges posed by Large Language Models (LLMs) by means of analysis and debate.
- Practical Engagement: Practical examples will allow you to understand the ethical use of LLMs in research and education, as well as in industry.

Who Should Attend?

- Students: Anyone with a matric certificate (or equivalent) eager to integrate ethical AI practices in their studies/work life.
- Professionals: Industry experts and practitioners who use LLMs such as ChatGPT, Gemini, Meta AI, etc., in their work.
