Governance

Good corporate governance is a key value for the modern corporate community. In South Africa, this is illustrated by the practical importance of compliance with key principles set out in the King IV (2016) reports on corporate governance. Board governance is a core aspect of corporate governance and pivotal to corporate law. It is vital that all compliance officers, senior employees, managers, directors and executive officers of corporations have a thorough understanding of their duties and of different ways in which the quality and effectiveness of the board can be improved. The importance of such knowledge has been highlighted by the spate of corporate collapses internationally and in South Africa.

Programme Overview

In 1997, RAU, now the University of Johannesburg, was one of the first universities in the world to offer a complete university programme in corporate governance. This programme on board governance is an extension of that programme, with a focus on recent local and international developments in the area of corporate governance and board governance. The pioneer of this programme, Professor Jean Du Plessis, formed part of the international reference group that advised the Department of Trade and Industry on international best practices in the area of corporate governance.

This programme is also registered as one of the modules in the Postgraduate Diploma in Legal Principles Compliance. Students with a tertiary degree who are awarded the certificate, earn a core credit towards the programme. They will need to complete only three further modules in compliance management, money laundering control and basic interpretation theory to be awarded the University of Johannesburg's Postgraduate Diploma in Legal Principles Compliance.
