FACULTY OF LAW

Our Future
Reimagined

Programme Overview

The Faculty of Law: Non-subsidised Programmes Centre offers the short learning programme titled: Foundations of Animal Law. This is the third time that the animal law course is being held, after being offered for the first time in South Africa (and Africa more generally) in 2022. The course is held fully online and provides learners with a convenient and accelerated opportunity to learn about this exciting field. This programme will introduce learners to the way in which the law and policy intersects with animals and explores cutting-edge legal developments in this area. It will provide an understanding of the main regulatory framework governing animal law in South Africa and further analyses the gaps, realities and opportunities for providing greater protection for animals in law and policy.

Programme Content

The course will be run over approximately 10 sessions during the second semester in 2025. Some of the main aspects of the programme will include:

- An introduction to key notions and concepts in the field such as animal welfare, animal rights and defining key terms including animal law;
- Exploring the philosophical, ethical and legal foundation for rights, duties and obligations and how these concepts apply to non-human animals and exploring the particularities of African philosophy and animals;
- Exploring the place of animals in the South African Constitution and the possibilities that exist for their protection with a focus on key case law and jurisprudence;
- An overview of the main animal welfare laws and policy in South Africa and their gaps in providing protection for animals;
- Exploring the connection between the environment and animals and key laws and case law surrounding these issues;
- Probing practical issues relating to wild animals such as trophy hunting, the wildlife trade, the captive lion and other wildlife industry and the management of wild animals;
- Examining the plight of captive animals (both wild and domestic) and the legal framework governing them;
- Engaging with the issues and legal framework surrounding animals in agriculture including practices such as factory farming and the live export of animals;
- Considering the need for global regulation around animals and relevant international law and animals;
- Taking into account South African experience while considering foreign and comparative law that is developing around animals; and
- Exploring the relationship between protection of animals and the well-being of humans.

Assessment

Each participant will be required to write:

- A short writing assignment or assignments; and
- a longer academic style position paper relating to the subject matter of the course.

Programme Presenter(s)

Professor David Bilchitz is a Professor of Fundamental Rights and Constitutional Law at the University of Johannesburg and Professor of Law at the University of Reading. He is also Director of the South African Institute for Advanced Constitutional, Public, Human Rights and International Law (SAIFAC) and Vice-President of the International Association of Constitutional Law. He is also a member of the Academy of Science of South Africa. Prof Bilchitz has a BA (Hons) LLB from the University of the Witwatersrand and an MPhil and PhD from the University of Cambridge. In relation to animal law, Prof Bilchitz is co-founder and a director of Animal Law Reform South Africa and has been involved actively in changing the plight of animals in South Africa. He has also written several articles considering the changes that the new democratic constitutional order - that emerged in South Africa in 1994 - should bring about in relation to the status and entitlements of animals.

Amy P. Wilson is an attorney and the first South African to graduate with a master's degree in Animal Law. Amy has BCom, LLB and LLM degrees and previously practiced corporate commercial law as a senior associate before leaving practice to focus on social justice in academia and research. Amy is co-founder and Executive Director of the first dedicated animal law nonprofit in the country – Animal Law Reform South Africa, and holds several leadership roles in animal protection nonprofits throughout Africa. She is a lecturer, research associate and LLD candidate with the University of Johannesburg. Amy has worked as a fellow at UCLA School of Law in Los Angeles, California and at the world's premier animal law programme at Lewis and Clark Law School in Portland, Oregon. She has consulted for academic and international animal protection organisations. Amy is an independent expert with the United Nations in Harmony with Nature Programme, which focuses on the rights of nature in law and policy. She has published in international peer reviewed journals and books and presented to audiences around the world.

Lectures and Workshops

The programme is held online in the evenings and is broken down into approximately 10 sessions. It features a range of interactive content, including live video lectures, a selection of materials and case studies and access to various further educational resources. The programme is presented on the Moodle e-Learning platform. The lecture portion of the programme will take place with one to two lectures per week with exact dates to be confirmed culminating in the requirement to write a detailed position paper at the end of the course (for which another few weeks will be provided).

Certificate and Continuing Professional Development

Delegates who successfully complete the programme will qualify for a certificate from the University signaling their completion of the course.
